Always We Begin Again - Leeana Tankersley

It reminded me this morning of that quote "Always we begin again." I couldn't remember where it came from, and was a little embarrassed to find it is in the Rule of St Benedict --- the foundation of our vowed life and our own Rule. It's been right here telling me I don't have just one shot to get it right.....I have Day after Day!

Always we begin again - open, willing, but also with a sense of self-care and trust in God's time. And lastly I hear the word - leap. I love the Henri Nouwen story about the Flying Rodleights that I have shared here in the past. You can read this great story here. Leap. Trust the Catcher. Move out of my comfort zone. Take a risk.

Always We Begin Again - Healthy Spirituality

The doors are always open for us to begin again. We are received just as the Prodigal Son was received, with open and forgiving arms. The image of the Prodigal Son, created by Rembrandt, communicates both motherly and fatherly qualities of a God who welcomes us all home.

Always we begin again - we do this in theology, too. I used to think that the Christian life was one long (albeit bumpy) climb uphill to greater knowledge of and greater intimacy with God. But in my Christian life I have encountered theology and story that has countered and crumbled tenets of my faith I previously thought were steady.

Always We Begin Again. In the Gospel lesson from Matthew we read, "From that time Jesus began to proclaim, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven has come near.!" When I hear the word "REPENT" I'm reminded of the wild-eyed TV preachers whose call for repentance seems one of judgment that holds little love or grace for me . . . or for anyone.
